

Cindy L. Hoo
Lab Assistant
English Department
1664 N. Virginia St., Reno, NV 89503
Cell: 775-XXX-XXXX
Email: cindyloohoo@gmail.com

Nevada State Undergraduate Research Journal (NSURJ)
ASUN/ Center for Student Engagement
MS 0058, 3rd Floor Joe Crowley Student
1664 N. Virginia St., Reno, NV 89503

January 1, 2016

Dear Senior Editors,

Enclosed you will find my manuscript titled, “The True Meanings of Dr. Seuss’ Writing”. This submission was originally written for my senior thesis project and has been modified according to the publication’s posted criteria. I conducted my research in Dr. Seuss’ lab, which is a part of the Department of English at the University of Nevada. I graduated in May 2016 with a Bachelor of Arts degree in English, but I continue to be a part of Dr. Seuss’ lab where I have the opportunity to further my work.

The goal of my project was to study the effects of poems and rhyming patterns and schemes that present themselves throughout the allegorical metatheses.

Please do not hesitate to contact me if you have any questions or revisions.

Sincerely,

Cindy Hoo